Demosthenes Ausgewählte Reden. Für den Schulgebrauch erklärt von C. REHDANTZ und F. BLASS. Erster Theil, die neun Philippischen Reden. Erstes Heft, i-iii: Olynthische Reden, iv: erste Rede gegen Philippos. Neunte, verbesserte Auflage, besorgt von K. FUHR. Leipzig und Berlin: Teubner, 1909. Pp. vii+176.

The preparation of a new edition of this standard commentary has been undertaken by K. Fuhr. As he states in his Preface, the greatest change has been made in the text, in which a number of innovations, made by Blass on rhythmical and other grounds, have been rejected in favor of stricter conformity to Codex Σ. This change will meet with approval. The critical Appendix, in which Blass defended his new readings, has naturally been dropped, and the new editor, not caring to criticize his predecessor, has entirely omitted this feature.

It is unnecessary to dwell upon the merits of so well known a book. The notes upon the Greek text are essentially the same as in the last edition. The text of the scholarly Introduction is also left practically unchanged, but the footnotes thereto have been enriched by references to the literature that has appeared since 1893.

Xenophontis scripta minora. Fasciculus prior Oeconomicum, Convivium, Hieronem, Agesilaum, Apologiam Socratis continens. Post L. DINDORF edidit TH. THALHEIM. Leipzig: Teubner, 1910. Pp. xvi+234.

A new Teubner text of Xenophon's minor works will be received with pleasure. Considering that Dindorf's second edition was issued in 1849, a revision was overdue. Schenkl's edition of the Oeconomicus, Symposium, and Apology has been, of course, available, but it goes back to 1876. Since 1901 we have had these three in Marchant's Oxford Xenophon, and the Oeconomicus, in particular, has been well looked after in annotated editions, but the others have been too much neglected.

For the preparation of his text Thalheim had placed at his disposal the numerous collations made by Schenkl, and not only those used in the 1876 edition, but also those of fifteen MSS of the Hiero and eight of the Agesilaus. In addition he has used for the Oeconomicus six MSS and some papyrus fragments; for the Symposium, H<sup>a</sup> and a papyrus fragment; for the Hiero T, a collation of O by Rühl, a photographic reproduction of A, and some pages of D and Ha; for the Agesilaus Gu and Ha and a photographic reproduction of A; and for the Apology a collation of C by H. Schenkl.<sup>1</sup> For the
